

The invention concerns thermoelastic designs incorporating an expansive element formed from material selected in accordance a procedure involving the derivation of an indicator of the material's potential effectiveness for each application. (Figure 1 to 5 accompany the abstract)

Figure 1

[illegible]